CONFERENCE FAILED.

No Settlement Reached in the Coal Miners' Strike.

ILLINOIS OPERATORS TO BLAME

President McBride Addresses a Meeting of Miners and Starts Home—Serious State of Affairs in Colorado—Militia on Duty in Iowa—No Disturbance in Ohio. Dispatches From Other Mining Towns.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., June 1.—The conference of coal operators of Illinois, called to attempt a settlement of the strike, adjourned sine die yesterday afternoon having accomplished nothing. The operators say "every man for himself and the devil take the hindmost."

Last night President McBride of the United Mine Workers left for Columbus, O. Before leaving he and Vice President Penna addressed a monster meeting of miners in front of the courthouse. Both speakers attributed the blame for the failure of the conference of the operators to the refusal of the Consolidated Coal company to enter it. President McBride said that had Charles Ridgley, the president of the Consolidated Coal company, gone in a basis for a settlement would have been arrived at and the strike ended. This was the third conference of operators and both officers charged that the continuance of the strike after each was chargeable to the Consolidated people.

The Wabash shops, employing 350 men, shut down here yesterday on account of lack of fuel. The forces at Decatur and Chicago numbering nearly 100 men have also been laid off for the same reason.

WAR CLOUDS AT CRIPPLE CREEK

CRIPPLE CREEK, Colo., June 1.—The war clouds that hover over Bull Hill and Battle Mountain look very threatening. A rumor has reached the camp that the deputies are preparing to advance toward Bull Hill and the miners are preparing to give them a warm reception.

There is no truth in the rumor that the miners have a lot of deputies prisoners. The strikers are making prisoners of men whom they consider dangerous to their safety and it is stated that 30 persons are thus held in custody.

The strikers surrounded the Summit mine yesterday, captured three nonunion miners and destroyed the telephone.

Mrs. W. D. Snell, wife of one of the miners employed in the Strong mine, has been driven from the camp. The strikers threatening to take her life and destroy her property, if she remained. Her husband, who has incurred the enmity of the mob, suddenly disappeared several days ago, and she believes he has been murdered. She was not permitted to look for him before leaving for Colorado Springs.

No stages have entered or left Cripple Creek for the past 24 hours and no railway communication has been had for three days. In consequence anxiety is increasing on the part of those who wish to leave. In spite of rain and bad roads many men have sent their wives and children to places of safety.

The miners have great faith in Governor Waite being able to adjust matters with the mine owners so that work may be started on all idle properties by the first of the week at the latest. They are greatly put out that his excellency has been delayed in his journey to Colorado Springs by washouts.

LAWLESSNESS AND INSURRECTION

The Trouble at Cripple Creek Has Gone Entirely Too Far.

COLORADO SPRINGS, June 1.—The authorities have notified the mine owners who have properties at Cripple Creek that the trouble in that district has gone entirely beyond the question of wages or of arbitration of wages. It is now, they state, entirely one of putting down the lawlessness and insurrection existing in the district and they propose to make every effort to do this.

For this purpose a special session of the grand jury has been called and the Cripple Creek cases will at once be taken up. People who live and do business in Cripple Creek are coming to Colorado Springs in large numbers, as they state they no longer dare remain at their homes. The majority have been ordered to leave by the striking miners. They tell stories of outrageous treatment and innumerable threats from the strikers.

Deputies Sent to Cripple Creek.

DENVER, June 1.—The sheriff sent 150 more deputies to Cripple Creek yesterday. They were all armed with Winchesters, carried blankets, and were equipped for hard service. They will stop at Colorado Springs until the road into the camp has been repaired. Chicago has offered 1,000 men at $3 a day, but the proposition was declined by Sheriff Bowers of Colorado Springs.

A BOLD MOVE

Business Men Resolve to Protect Nonunion Miners.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., June 1.—Business men of Leavenworth, fully 500 strong, made a bold move in a big mass-meeting yesterday evening. They resolved unanimously to give the miners of this city who desire to work, protection in the fullest sense of the word and if necessary resort to physical force in the accomplishment of this end.

Governor Waite and party are weatherbound near McCourt camp, and there is no telling when he will get here. The governor is greatly disappointed, as he fears the deputies will make an advance.

General Johnson, who commands the strikers' forces, served with Captain Zalinski in the United States army and it is said his knowledge of the principles of the Zalinski dynamite guns has enabled him to construct a dangerous weapon, which will be used against the deputies. It can throw dynamite several hundred feet.

Such decided action was made imperative by the assemblage of a number of Missouri strikers at the North Leavenworth shaft yesterday morning when one third of the men employed there were forced to return home.

Ex-Mayor Hacker presided and stated that the object of the assemblage was to organize a strong body of citizens to protect the miners in the peaceable pursuit of their avocation.

The miners sent committees to the meeting to inform it of their willingness to work and asked for protection.

While the meeting was in progress 100 Missouri miners and sympathizers, headed by a man named McGregor, marched to the city hall where the citizens were assembled. About half the strikers forced their way inside and McGregor asked permission to talk. He began a tirade against the people and openly defied the assemblage and the city and the county of Leavenworth. He was stopped by Colonel Anthony, who made a motion that McGregor be driven from the building and out of the city forthwith and that his emissaries be dispersed. An awful uproar followed but peace was finally restored with difficulty. A committee was appointed to organize volunteers for the protection of the miners.

IN PENNSYLVANIA

Governor Pattison Denounced For the Proclamation.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., June 1.—The leaders of the miners' organization are strongly opposed to Governor Pattison's proclamation. Not one of them recognized any necessity for such a manifesto and all deny that he has any constitutional authority for the demands made in it. There is but one feeling among the strikers extending from the leaders down to the last of the foreign arrivals in the country.

That is expressed in their determined declarations that they have an undisputed legal and logical right to march in peace along the public highways and to hold meetings wherever anybody has the right to public assembly and that they will continue to exercise these rights until stopped by an overpowering force in the shape of the bullets and bayonets of the state troops.

A meeting is called for the district about the southwest plant, and it is claimed that thousands of men will be present.

Meeting of Ministers.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., June 1.—At a largely attended meeting of citizens last night presided over by Burgess Robertson speeches were made by all the ministers of town and by several business men. Resolutions were adopted declaring that the calling out of militia for the region is entirely unnecessary, deploring the importation of men to man the industries, condemning the introduction of the Gatling gun into a civilized community and declaring that impartial justice be meted out to all workingmen and operators alike. A copy of the resolutions were sent to Governor Pattison.

IN IOWA

Militia on Duty but Nothing For Them to Do.

OSKALOOSA, Ia., June 1.—The presence of the militia companies at Evans seemed to dishearten the strikers for a time but they rallied from their surprise and marched to this city where a great mass meeting was held in the public square.

The speakers disclaimed any intention to do violence and scored the calling out of the troops. It was asserted that it was not a strike but merely a suspension of labor and that they proposed to stand firm until the demands were satisfied in their fields.

Miners Forced to Quit.

KEOKUK, Ia., June 1.—A delegation of strikers marched from Centerville to Dean [illegible] yesterday afternoon and forced the miners in a private mine operated for the Rock Island and Western railway to stop work. The railroad is hard pressed for fuel and has taken off local freight trains two days each week.

Trouble Looked For.

PANA, Ills., June 1.—As the working miners came out yesterday evening they were met near the premises of the companies and threatened by strikers. Trouble of a serious nature is looked for.

Got an Advance.

CHEROKEE, Kan., June 1.—The miners at Fleming have been offered and have accepted [illegible]2 cents in summer and [illegible] cents in winter, and yesterday went to work.

IN KENTUCKY

The Strike Almost Complete as Nearly All the Mines Have Closed.

HAWESVILLE, Ky., June 1.—Everything is quiet at the Falcon mines. The 100 men from Mellen who have not arrived here yet but are expected hourly. About half the miners quit work yesterday afternoon and are in sympathy with the strikers.

The miners at Fordsville, Deanefield and Reynolds on the Falls of Rough railroad have been closed by the strikers. It is thought that they will move across to Cannelton, Ind., from Falcon and close down the mines there.

Stopped a Train.

BRAZIL, Ind., June 1.—Sheriff Ringo of this county has received instructions from Governor Matthews to use his influence in preventing the molesting of trains by the miners. Last night a crowd of strikers pushed a boxcar on the main track of the Vandalia, stopping a westbound freight which was supposed to be hauling coal, but no coal was found and the train was released.

All Well Armed.

MACON, Mo., June 1.—The Loomis Coal company has declared its mines open for work but engaged no miners. The strikers have their guns stacked at their camp outside of the coal company's fence and the officers fear a conflict at any time. The negroes have plenty of guns at their quarters and the coal company has hired guards and the deputy marshals are well armed.

Ten Cents a Bushel For Slack.

POMEROY, O., June 1.—All is quiet in mining circles in the Pomeroy Bend. The six men at work in the New Haven mine quit yesterday and the works at Spillman are idle. There is no coal on the flats there and the Bonanza had to coal at the mouth of Kanawha last night paying 10 cents a bushel for slack.

No Coal Moving.

TRIMBLE, O., June 1.—Nothing is being done at Glouster by the strikers. The coal is still there and the railroad is not hauling any more. There is nothing to indicate any trouble at present. All the troops and authorities have left.

Coal Fans Running Again.

LA SALLE, Ills., June 1.—The two last companies of militia left here yesterday and so far all is quiet. The fans at the coal shafts are running again, and men are engaged hoisting water from the mines without molestation.

Miners Quiet.

TARIFF ON SUGAR.

This Subject Finally Reached in the United States Senate.

LUMBER FINALLY DISPOSED OF

Senator Sherman Makes the Opening Speech. Substitute For the Hawaiian Resolution Introduced and Passed in the Senate—State Bank Tax Bill Discussed in the House but No Action Taken.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—There was a good attendance on both sides of the political aisle when the senate met Thursday. Senator Turpie presented a set of resolutions adopted by the legislature of Ohio protesting against the Russian extradition treaty. Senator Hill then offered his resolution directing the bribery investigation committee to throw open its doors to the public. It went over.

Senator Turpie offered a joint resolution declaring that it was no longer to the interest of the United States to continue the treaty with Russia ratified on April 21 and that notice be served upon the Emperor of Russia that the United States purposes to terminate that treaty at the expiration of six months, the time required to be given by the treaty. He also reported from the committee on foreign affairs a resolution with a unanimous recommendation that it pass as a substitute for the Hawaiian resolution reported some months ago. It made no reference to annexation and was as follows:

RESOLVED, by the senate of the United States that of right it belongs wholly to the people of Hawaii to establish and maintain their own form of government and domestic policy; that the United States ought not in any way to interfere therewith and that any interference in political affairs of these islands by any other government will be regarded as an act unfriendly to the United States.

The resolution was passed unanimous[ly], [illegible] senators voting for it. Senator Mills did not vote.

Senator Peffer, Pop., Kan., offered a resolution which was appropriately referred instructing the judiciary committee to report whether the government of the United States could by virtue of an act of congress constitutionally take possession of and hold for public uses, paying compensation therefor, all the coal fields of the country.

The tariff bill was taken up. Several amendments offered to the lumber paragraph looking to a duty on rough lumber were voted down by a strict party vote.

Senator Allen then moved to strike out paragraph [illegible] as follows: Lumber of any sort planed or finished on each side, 50 cents per thousand feet board measure, and if planed on one side and tongued and grooved $1 per thousand, and if planed on two sides and tongued and grooved $1 [illegible] per thousand; and in estimating board measure under this schedule no deduction shall be made on account of planing, grooving or tonguing.

Senator Vest [illegible] the Republican when he announced that the amendment would be accepted by the Democratic side. As the amendments to the lumber schedule were being voted on without debate under an agreement arrived at on Wednesday, the vote was immediately taken and it was agreed to—by a strict party vote, Messrs. Peffer and Allen, Populists, voting in favor. This will have the effect of putting all lumber on the free list.

The sugar schedule of the tariff bill was reached. Senator Sherman of Ohio took the floor and delivered a carefully prepared speech on the general subject of the tariff and was listened to with marked attention. He alluded to the differences in the Democratic ranks on tariff questions and contrasted Mr. Cleveland's letter of acceptance with the Democratic platform of 1892. He charged that the sugar schedule had been drawn by the refiners. He denounced the protection given the sugar trust and declared that it was five-eighths of a cent, or equal to the entire cost of refining sugar including the waste and loss of the refiners. Before closing Mr. Sherman devoted some time to the discussion of the income tax. An income tax, he said, was indefensible unless it was levied against all incomes alike. To single out a class was communism. Mr. Sherman finished at 2:45 after having spoken three hours.

Mr. Camden (Dem., W. Va.) followed with a brief speech.

Mr. Dolph (Rep., Or.) then took the floor and occupied the rest of the afternoon in speaking on the sugar schedule. At 6 o'clock he yielded to Mr. Harris for a motion to go into executive session. After a brief executive session the senate adjourned.

In the House.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—General Sickles introduced and the house passed a resolution instructing the secretary of war to do what is necessary under the act of March 3, 189[illegible], for the preservation of the Gettysburg battlefield.

The bill for an additional judge for the northern district of Illinois passed, after which the bill to repeal the tax on state bank circulation was taken up, Mr. Black of Georgia resuming his speech in favor of repeal.

Mr. Black was followed by Mr. Walker (Rep., Mass.) whose speech evoked rounds of Democratic applause on account of the advanced position he took in favor of an extension and enlargement of the bank note system. The other speakers of the day were Messrs. McLaurin of South Carolina and Mr. Wheeler of Alabama who favored the repeal of the state bank tax.

The house at 5:05 o'clock adjourned.

Cyclone in Arkansas.

LITTLE ROCK, June 1.—News has just reached this city of a terrible cyclone which passed through Arkansas county last night about 12 o'clock. The southbound Cottonbelt passenger train would have been caught in the cyclone but for the engineer who stopped the train until the cyclone had passed a short distance away. The track was covered with debris causing a considerable delay to the train. The damage done is considerable though no lives have been reported lost.

Natchevics; finance, M. [illegible]; justice, [illegible]; public instruction, M. [illegible]; war, M. Petroff; commerce and industry, M. Tontcheff.

KELLYITES DIVIDED

ST. LOUIS, June 1.—The commonweal army of General Kelly, now in camp here, divided yesterday and 500 of the men under Colonel George Speed of [illegible] will hereafter march on foot by themselves. The cause is the alleged arrogance of Kelly, not the least incident in which is his persistence against the wishes of the men in allowing two women to remain with the army. Speed will endeavor to enforce a division of the commissary by legal methods.

Late yesterday afternoon Colonel George Speed, head of the seceding part of the command, with J. D. Jones, the agent of the Chicago publishers, and several of the officers of the rebellious staff appeared before Judge Lubke of the circuit court. They charged Kelly with illegal retention of the entire commissary stores and equipment of the fleet and they wanted authority to compel a division of the property and to compel Kelly to give an account of his receipts and disbursements of money contributions.

Judge Lubke told Colonel Speed that he had a perfect right to surround the commissary boats and prevent their removal and then to apply for a receiver.

The existing troubles do not seem to have any effect upon the recruiting, some [illegible]00 men having joined the army since its arrival here.

Deputy Sheriff Smith of Butler, Mo., left here last night having in custody Attorney General James W. Badger of General Kelly's army. Badger is wanted at Butler on the charge of carrying concealed weapons, having it is said jumped a bond of $100 in this case about four years ago.

Fry Did Not Go Far Enough.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., June 1.—General Fry's army of commonwealers, 300 strong, were expected to reach this city last night on their way up the Ohio river and a big lot of provisions awaited them here which had been gathered by the labor unions. At 5 o'clock, however, they landed up at Burlington, O., four miles below here. Hundreds of people had flocked to the banks of the river to see them and were disappointed.

AMOS BOEHMER, Chairman.
C. H. HOWICK, Secretary.

To-morrow the Republicans will hold their County Convention and nominate the lambs to be led to the slaughter next November.

The coal miners' strike continues; Coxeyites are moving on Washington, and the United States Senate is engaged on the tariff, with Republican Senators interposing delay in useless speeches and frivolous motions. All these things will come to an end, however.

The Republican State Central Committee of California met at San Francisco on the 3d of May and decided to hold the Republican State Convention at Sacramento. One of the reasons that helped capture the convention for that city, it is stated, was the promise of "free beer to the delegates, by a leading Sacramento brewery.

There are several gentlemen on the Republican side of the Senate who pose as statesmen; the one man on that side who has shown himself broader than his party recently, is Senator Teller, of Colorado. His party may not like him for his breadth just now; but the time may shortly come when it will be glad to recognize the political value of Mr. Teller's perception and sense of public duty.

There is no discount on Bob Ingersoll's Republicanism. He belongs to the very elect of that party. Yet he does not seem to have any special regard for the McKinley idea of protection. In a recent address he said:

"It may be well enough to rock the cradle for infant industry, but when it gets over six feet tall and wears number nine boots and threatens to get out of the cradle and kick your head off if you don't rock to suit it, it is about time to move on and give that McKinley infant a rest."

The infamy is finished. The necessary publication has been given to the tax ordinance and the $10,000 additional tax has been placed upon the shoulders of Lima's taxpayers by the Republican administration of the city.

This action by those who have the power to impose taxes is infamous. It demonstrates an undue anxiety to get hold of a nice bundle of public money with which to raise salaries, and indulge in other extravagance. In view of the fact that times are hard and the army of unemployed is growing larger daily; that when the first installment of the blood-money will be called for in December next, it will find hundreds of taxpayers without work, without wages, and without enough money to buy the necessary winter clothing for their own families, the imposition of an enormous tax cannot be too strongly deprecated.

Yet such is the result of Republicanism wherever it is administered, and the present tax rate, onerous as it may seem, will not be a circumstance to what this crowd will impose upon the overburdened taxpayers before the public have an opportunity to turn them out.

Crime of serious character seems to have almost completely disappeared from Ireland. It is a pretty custom in that country when there is no criminal business to go before the juries to present a pair of white gloves to the Quarter Sessions Judges. In Limerick and in several other parts of Ireland, even in wicked County Clare, the Judges have received their gloves recently. This notable condition ought not to escape the attention of the English Parliament. It would seem to be safe to let such a law abiding people rule themselves.

AS WILD AS THE POPULISTS.

When a Republican State Convention in so old and conservative a Commonwealth as Pennsylvania pronounces in favor of an increase of the money circulation to $40 per capita, we sumbit that Eastern flings at Populistic ignorance and Communism in Kansas, and Republican flings at Democratic financial heresy had better come to an end. This is not a haphazard declaration in the Pennsylvania platform, surreptitiously worked off upon the convention at an unguarded moment. It was in the platform last year, and had been a subject of wide notice. It was therefore reaffirmed deliberately and in full knowledge of the nature of the demand.

The present per capita monetary circulation on the United States is a fraction above $24. What the Republican party of the great State of Pennsylvania consequently demands is an increase of the money value by $16 per capita, or over $1,000,000,000. How is it to be thus increased? Something is said in another part of the platform about letting national banks issue notes to the par value of bonds. But if every Governmental bond in the country were so employed, the money would not begin to be as large as the Pennsylvania Republicans demand. Something is said, again, about using silver "on a parity with gold" in some indefinite way. But the Government might utilize as money every ounce of silver produced in the United States year after year without being able to satisfy this Pennsylvania demand in the next quarter of a century.

What the Pennsylvania Republicans must want, then, is a big issue of greenbacks along with a lot of almost equally flat silver. This puts them at once on the Omaha Populist platform, which demands $50 per capita (surely the Pennsylvania Republicans would not object to the extra $10), to be got by free silver coinage and a greenback issue. That part of the Populist platform has generally and rightly been regarded as the craziest part. But here is the Republican organization in the next largest and richest State of the Union, and supposed to be one of the soundest and safest of all on property rights and money, close up to the Western and Southern Populists in the wildness and incoherence of its demands. Let us say no more about Kansas and Alabama.

The Medina Gazette (Republican) is announcing the fact that the Ohio Republican General Assembly has adjourned, says: "If they had adjourned three months ago, they would have taken rank as the model Assembly in the Legislative history of the State of Ohio." There is that "if" again. Follow the "if" to its inevitable conclusion, and you find that "if" the people had not elected the late Republican Legislature, they would have been infinitely better off. The Legislature began its session on the first Monday of January last, and adjourned on Monday, May 21st. It was, therefore, in session four months and a half—three months longer than the Gazette thinks it should have been in session. A Legislature that cannot continue in session four months and a half and "grow in the world's approving eye," should not be elected at all.—Wayne Co. Democrat.

Peculiar to Itself.

So eminently successful has Hood's Sarsaparilla been that many leading citizens from all over the United States furnish testimonials of cures which seem almost miraculous. Hood's Sarsaparilla is not an accident but the ripe fruit of industry and study. It possesses merit "peculiar to itself."

Dealing With the Liquor Saloon.

The Arena gives its readers a symposium contributed to by a doctor of divinity, a woman, a plain preacher, without any title, and the editor of the magazine. Each has views on the drinking saloon and how to do away with its evils. The doctor of divinity, Rev. A. A. Miner, would suppress the whole traffic out and out by law and law and law. He says this can be done and was done in Massachusetts in 1867. The only trouble was that people would not let it stay put.

The lady, Mrs. Helen Gougar, would do the same through concerted political action—in brief, through the Prohibition party. Legal protection, she says, is the bulwark of the traffic. She wants this protection taken away, and then she would let the Prohibitionists have their whack at the saloon. Mrs. Gougar tells us the Prohibition party is growing. Besides prohibition, she would have the rising generation thoroughly instructed in the effects of alcohol on the human body, also she calls for the enfranchisement of women. If, however, women beer drinkers go on increasing in the cities as they are doing at present, this would do little good.

Rev. Walter Vrooman holds up the state dispensary system, as it existed in South Carolina, as his remedy for the saloon evil. Incidentally he suggests the name of Ben R. Tillman to head the reform party national ticket in 1896. B. O. Flower, editor of The Arena, considers that the great and growing power of the beer and whisky interests in politics is a serious menace to the country. He says, "The two old parties are vying with one another in subservience to the dictates of the liquor power."

Mr. Flower does not wish to see the great brewers and distillers of this country carry its politics in their trousers pockets. He suggests two remedies for the evil of drunkenness. One is the state dispensary system, like that which has just fallen through in South Carolina; the other is the Scandinavian system. In each city or town, under the Scandinavian system, the sale of intoxicating liquors is allotted to a single corporation, more than half the management of which must be total abstinents. The superintendent must be such. The corporation is allowed to receive 4 to 6 per cent on the capital invested, no more. The rest of the money goes to public uses, but not to such as require taxation to sustain them. The liquor store must be closed at 6 or 7 in the evening.

City Ownership of a Railroad.

The New York rapid transit bill signed by Governor Flower provides a way whereby the city may own and operate its own street railway. The bill names a rapid transit commission. The commission previously appointed had made plans and specifications and obtained the consent of the necessary number of property owners along the route they had selected. The new commission will therefore find this work already done for them if they accept the work as it is.

The plan adopted is substantially that elaborated by Hon. Abram S. Hewitt and called the Chamber of Commerce rapid transit bill. Mr. Hewitt's idea was that a private corporation should build the new road with the city's aid. The private corporation will operate the road for a term of years—30 years was the time originally contemplated by Mr. Hewitt—then all will be turned over to the municipality at its just value.

This idea is in accordance with the undoubted tendency of the time to place railroads, telegraphs and other public works under government control, national, state or municipal, as the case may be. The bill as adopted contains a referendum clause, which shows another tendency of the time. The question of the city's controlling the rapid transit system is to be submitted to a vote of the people of New York next fall, and as they decide so will be settled the matter. If they vote no, then municipal rapid transit will be killed for the time.

How many insane patients in the rest of the country are in the condition of the women city patients of New York on Ward's island, of whom The Herald has discovered that they are "fed on uneatable stuff called food and dragged into submission by the lavish use of slow poisons?" The Herald says: "Can any one doubt that they are often ill treated, insufficiently clad in winter, overcrowded at all times; that they die like sheep for lack of proper medicines or medical treatment; that they are wasting with scurvy and are inhumanly treated in many other particulars?"

A fair knowledge of the English language ought to be the first requisite for citizenship. This is an English speaking country. It always will be. No man should be permitted to vote unless he can read the constitution of the United States in the language in which it was written. With foreign tongues come foreign ideas, unrepublican ideas.

Those who want to see the square thing done without fear or favor in the investigation of the armor plate frauds will be glad that the chairman of the house committee for this purpose is Hon. Amos J. Cummings of New York.

Considering the kind of armor plates that have been supplied to them, "cracked cruisers" would be a better name for our naval ships than "crack cruisers."

Pannard, a noted French poet, made a reputation by writing drinking songs in the shape of bottles, glasses and other bacchanalian emblems. A number of his books were printed in these quaint shapes.

If a person of greater age than yourself desires you to step first into a carriage, or through a door, it is more polite to bow and obey than to decline.

DYING BY INCHES.

The Case of a Man In Philadelphia Who Is a Victim of Ossification.

There is a living man in this city who is turning to bone, and who has for three years thus been gradually approaching a certain death.

It is a case of ossification. Mr. Franklin Fletcher was a salesman of middle age and in good health when, one day about three years ago, a peculiar sort of lump began to form on his chest. In a few days the lump had grown to alarming proportions, and one morning as he was leaving the house he was taken with such violent pains through all the muscles of his body that he had to go to bed. A doctor was sent for, and in the meantime the pains subsided.

The tumor was treated and soon passed away, but the pains returned, and the unfortunate man noticed that he was becoming rigid. He thought he had a peculiar form of rheumatism and went to a physician for a thorough examination. When this was concluded, the following remarkable conversation took place:

"Well, doctor, it's only rheumatism, after all, isn't it?"

"Shall I tell you the plain truth?" asked the medical man.

"Why, yes, of course."

"Well, Mr. Fletcher, your case is hopeless. Your disease will end in death soon, and there is no known medicine on earth that can cure it."

The sick man said nothing, but his face was as white as death, and beads of cold perspiration stood out on his brow. The doctor nerved himself and continued:

"I'd best let you know the worst at once. You won't suffer much at first. These violent pains will soon subdue, but every day you will find yourself getting stiffer. First, the glands throughout your body will become hard. When you bend your limbs too much, it will seem like you are tearing your muscles. After awhile your muscles will become hardened, and your limbs will feel much heavier than formerly. At last you will have to keep your bed.

"Up to this stage your mental faculties and stomach will be practically unimpaired, but soon after you are too stiff to move about you will find your memory failing you. That will mean that the brain tissue is becoming ossified. The muscles of your heart, the very mainspring of life, will next stiffen. Then, Mr. Fletcher, make your will, if you have not done so previously. I speak plainly, but in kindness. You have about 18 months to live."

Mr. Fletcher said nothing, but rose, shook the doctor's hand and went home. There he has remained since and is not dead yet, though he is surely dying by inches. Every day he becomes a little stiffer, so little that perhaps several weeks will pass before any change is perceptible. As the physician prophesied, his mind has begun to weaken, but the doomed man fights bravely for life, although no one gives any reason to hope. Almost every remedy conceivable has been tried, but all in vain. Yet this brave man continues to struggle even after his friends have despaired.—Philadelphia Times.

Peculiarities of Insanity.

The differentiation of the various forms of insanity grows apace, and the old cry of excessive terminology and elaborate classification is of no account. The latest form of madness is reported from the Asylum of Sainte-Anne in Paris. The patient so affected is regarded as entirely sane in all respects but two—one, an uncontrollable impulse to bark like a dog and to otherwise imitate "all the modulations of the canine voice;" the other, a passion for the number "three." The barking mania, we take it, is not quite exceptional, for it is not unusual for epileptics and idiots to mimic dog barks, and the passion for number three is by no means uncommon among the sane.

Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes observed how frequently men think in triads. The fact is that few men have not some peculiarity of mental habit known only to themselves, and the tendency to nominate everything of the kind a monomania or madness is absurd. It will have this effect by and by—that madness will not be regarded as so grave an affliction as in days gone by.—Medical Press.

"I had severe trouble with one of my legs for years. The limb would swell up and be very painful. From time to time I was laid up for three months. I tried many

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

A Lion Tamer's Brave Rescue.

M. Bidel, the noted lion tamer, relates in his memoirs a terrible adventure. He was sitting at the entrance of the menagerie with Mme. Bidel, and the entertainment was about to begin, when he heard a piercing cry. This was followed by furious roaring and cries of "Help! help!" by many voices. He rushed in. All eyes were turned toward one of the cages. He says:

It was appalling. Venturelli, a poor fellow in my employ, had been lifted from the ground and was suspended outside the cage in the claws of four lions, one of whom was eating his arm.

One glimpse of that horrible sight and I ran, reflecting in a second that to go around the cages and get in by the ordinary entrance would involve a fatal delay, and deciding on the desperate expedient of raising the grating on the side toward the spectators and crawling into the cage.

How I did it, how it happened that I was not caught and mangled, I do not know. But suddenly I was on my feet, in the midst of that savage feast, with neither stick nor whip, and only my fists for weapons. I struck and commanded. The lions fell back and let fall their prey. I hurried out of the cage, and was greeted with enthusiastic applause.

I thought poor Venturelli was dead. But he was taken to the hospital, his wounds were dressed, and he recovered. Then I asked how it happened. He said, "When I passed those gentlemen," he always spoke courteously of the lions. "I wished to caress them. Three were asleep, and one was awake. That one misunderstood my attention. He waked his comrades, seized me, and but for you I should certainly have made a meal for them."

He Got Applause Anyway.

'Tis seldom that an actor is hissed, but recently the patience of an Albany audience gave way, and the soul stirring efforts of two mediocre actors not long since received well merited hisses. For a moment the artists were dumb, then one of them, advancing to the footlights, said in tremulous tones: "Friends, I'm sorry. We've done the best we could to amuse you. We've thrown ourselves about the stage and worked hard, and is this the return we get?" He stopped for a moment. Then his anger and resentment overmastered him. "This is the first time," said he, in a ringing tone, "that the American Macks have ever been hissed. I'm sorry that you show such little courtesy to a fellow man, but if there is any one among you," he cried, tearing off the beard and wig, revealing the close cropped head and square jaws of a prize fighter, "who wishes to back up what he did let him step up here."

The nerve of the man captured the audience. Those who had hissed him now cheered and applauded. They admired the pluck of the man. The applause emboldened him, and as he threw aside his coat he called again for any person in the audience to meet him, but he must have a parting shot, and as he turned to leave the stage he yelled, "If any of you want to see me after the performance is over you will find me at the entrance!" But no one saw him. His brutality captured more applause than his acting.—Albany Argus.

Kindness Misapplied.

"What's the matter?" asked the kind hearted old gentleman of the boy who was weeping bitterly.

"I g-got two nice, clean blocks, an' them fellers took 'em away from me."

"Well, well!" exclaimed the old gentleman. "Did you want them very bad?"

"Y-yes, sir."

"Hasn't your mother any kindling?"

"No, sir, she ai-ain't."

"Father too poor to buy any?"

"N-no, sir."

"Does he drink?"

"S-some."

"Humph! Very proper pride. I see it all," was the kind hearted comment. "But you wanted the blocks for kindling, didn't you?"

"N-no, sir."

"What did you want them for, then?"

"I want 'em t-to hit together and m-make a dickens of a n-noise with, sir."

The kind hearted gentleman turned the corner almost in a trot to avoid missing an appointment.—Washington Post.

She Made Her Point.

"Feminine," responded a bright eyed girl near the front, with a saucy little shake of the head.

There was a chorus of objections, called forth by the teacher's look of pain at such ignorance, but the girl never flinched.

"I say it is feminine," she insisted, with the same saucy smile, "and I can prove it," she added as a clincher.

"Pray, how?" inquired the teacher, sarcastically.

"It's feminine," she explained, "because it never tells its age!"

The teacher is young and pretty herself, or there's no telling what might have happened to the girl with the pun.—Detroit Free Press.

A SILVER AVALANCHE.

A Slide of Two Million Silver Dollars at the Philadelphia Mint.

A portion of the $50,000,000 that was stored away in vault C at the mint came very close to being a cause of disaster to several clerks who were counting the coin on Tuesday afternoon. An avalanche of silver dollars, released from their bundles through the rotting of the bags, poured down into the space where the clerks were standing, and only through their hasty escape was a loss of life prevented.

The coin was piled up in bags to a height of 12 feet and a width of 8 feet. The vault is damp, and the bags had become moldy and frail.

About 3 o'clock, as Welington Morris, an employee, was standing on top of the pile raking in some loose dollars, he trod into a bag, and the silver dollars at once began to slide out. Like a snowball on a mountain side, the mass of silver dollars grew in size. There was an ominous rumble, and the clerks at the foot of the pile looked up in surprise. Seeing the impending danger, a wild break was made for the door. Serious injury to Morris was feared, but he succeeded in escaping unhurt.

The impact of the dollars shook the mint building as by an earthquake, and intense excitement prevailed among the employees. It is estimated that the amount which fell was valued at fully $2,000,000 and weighed 112,000 pounds.

The accident caused a change to be made in the method of counting. Heretofore the counting has been facilitated by the use of a pair of scales, $1,000 being counted and weighed at a time. Now it will be necessary to count the dollars one by one, and the work will probably consume six months, possibly an entire year. Under the old system the count would have been finished by July 1.—Philadelphia Press.

"Bad. Our advertising agent made a fool of himself," said the dealer.

The old tune "God Save the King," or "America," so universally sung to "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," was undoubtedly composed by Dr. John Hull (1562-1628), music teacher to Queen Elizabeth about 1600.

It May Be So, and It May Not.

A Paris graphologist declares that there is a subtle relation between the letters "a" and "o" and the mouth of the person who writes them. The writer will always be found to be talkative just in proportion to the way he leaves open the tops of these letters.

You all know the chatterbox who must have an intimate friend in whose bosom he can repose all the accounts of his joys and sorrows. Examine one of his notes. You will find that his a or o will be as open at the top as though they were the letter u. Such an individual prefers the pleasures of outside life to his own home.

On the contrary, he who closes the tops of his letters a and o will be invariably discreet and fond of home life.

Which shows that one should mind his o's and his a's as well as his p's and q's.—New York Recorder.

The Foundry Project—Local and Personal Mention.

Delphos, June 1.—(Special Cor.)—Attorney G. L. Marble, of Van Wert, was in the city last evening on business.

Mrs. G. J. Baxter is visiting her parents at Creston, Iowa.

Mrs. W. V. La Rue and children are visiting relatives at Dayton.

Conductor W. H. Crites, of Charleston, Ill., is here visiting his daughters, Mrs. W. H. Van Glesen, of North Washington street.

Miss Mina Huber, the well known music teacher, will start the latter part of this month for Baden, Germany, to visit her mother.

A large crowd of young folks went to Middlepoint last evening to attend the commencement at the Middlepoint Normal school.

A class of ninety-five children will receive their first communion at St John's church Sunday.

Assessor Odum's report for Marion township shows personal property $132,000, new structures $6,200. There were 40 births and 16 deaths 212 dogs are listed.

The soliciting committee for the foundry project have about completed their work. There yet remains $180 to raise, and a number of good parties are yet to be seen. Just as soon as the sum is made up the work of putting up the building will be commenced.

Klein & Davis is the name of the new firm which has rented the corner room in the Phelan house block and will open up next week in the merchant tailoring and gent's furnishing goods business. Workmen are now busily engaged preparing the room for business.

Foreman Pease, of the Clover Leaf shops at this place, has succeeded in securing an allowance of $2,000 more for the shops next month. This means an increase in the force of from fifteen to twenty men, which will put renewed life and vigor into the sombre old buildings. There is not a person in Delphos but who would like to see a force of fifty or one hundred men employed at the shops again Mr. Pease has been working for some time past to have the force at the shops increased, but this is the first encouragement he has received. Through his persistent efforts this extra allowance has been made and may be the starting of a general increase in the force.

Summer Dressing.

"I have found," said a woman recently, "that the problem of summer dressing was satisfactorily solved since I have established a series of india silk dresses. I began two years ago with a handsome one dressily made. Last summer I got a second of good quality, but different design and made more plainly, and this summer I am supplementing the two with a cheaper one for morning and general wear. From now on I shall not need another cheap one, the good ones falling gradually from their high estate of 'best,' through 'second best' and down to 'common.' In these days of fancy blouses and bodices one or two light dressy affairs of that sort give me an elaborate wardrobe that is delightfully cool, is in good taste, and, best of all, at summer resorts needs no laundering My best light gown is a white wash silk. No one admires the lovely lawns, dimities and mulls more than do I, but they are very expensive, because they must be fresh to be wearable, and the cost of keeping them in that condition is, as every one who tries it knows, very much in excess of the first price of the gown."

Women In English Pulpits.

It is becoming quite fashionable for ladies to occupy important congregational pulpits on Sunday. Twice recently a sister of the late Mr. Spurgeon preached to crowded congregations at the handsome church in Hampstead Road in connection with the service. She is very impressive in her manner and is not without personal resemblance to her late eminent brother, from whom, however, she differed, among other things, on the question of baptism Again, a few Sundays back, Mrs. Lawson Forster, wife of the popular minister at Harecourt chapel, Canonbury, delivered an address instead of her husband, and Mrs. Vyrnwy Morgan's eloquent sermons at York Road have quite taken the hearts of the Lambeth people by storm.—London Tit-Bits

Helping Matters Along.

The young man had been courting the small boy's sister for a long time, but could get no definite answers to his proposals, and the s. b. thought it was high time for matters to come to a climax.

One evening the young man had urged his suit more ardently than ever and had again been discouraged The small boy, hidden behind the screen, could stand it no longer, and as the lover asked for the hundredth time, "Mary, dear, will you marry me?" the boy called out in exact imitation of his sister's voice·

"Yes, I will."

The sister started and stared in great perplexity, and——

It was all over. The young man had improved his opportunity, sealed his proposal, and Mary could get no chance to object

A chuckle caused them to turn dismayed, and there stood the small boy enjoying the scene

"There," said he, "that might have been done long ago," and then he discreetly vanished.—Detroit Free Press.

French Illustrative Art.

The proportion of artists in France of wide fame whose work is frequently seen in print is undoubtedly greater than in any other country, and one of many good reasons for this is certainly the exceptional skill and experience of the French in their use of reproductive processes and especially those which not only translate the form of the original, but the color as well. These color reproductions, printed from metal relief plates and not lithographic stones—the method usually resorted to by the rest of the world—are unique.

The secret of securing with but few impressions the marvelous combinations of color, the effects of washes, tones and lines, combined with a verve and character quite indescribable, is one of which only the French printer artist is complete master. Just across the border the German printer has developed lithography with something of the same enthusiasm which the Frenchman has devoted to the relief plates, each practically making few excursions into the other's methods of accomplishing the same thing.

A still further reason for this great superiority is the innate artistic sense of the French printer, or more properly the pressman. In other countries, where the engraver and printer are looked upon by the illustrator as his natural enemies, into whose hands a drawing is given grudgingly, the statement, which is not infrequently made by the French artist, that the reproduction or translation of the original into printed form is as effective in its way as the drawing itself, is calculated to excite derision.—Scribner's Magazine.

His Was Better.

Robert S Hawkes, always known as "the Vicar of Morwenstowe," and a poet of no mean ability, was brought up by his grandfather, a very learned and religious man. In the church where this old gentleman preached the evening service always closed with the hymn, "Lord, dismiss us with thy blessing," which was composed by Dr. Hawkes himself. His grandson, who did not know the authorship of the hymn, came to the doctor one day with a paper in his hand, saying·

"Grandfather, I don't altogether like that hymn, 'Lord, dismiss us with thy blessing.' I think it might be improved in meter and language and that it would be better if it were somewhat longer."

"Oh, indeed!" said Dr Hawkes, reddening 'And pray, Robert, what improvements commend themselves to your precocious wisdom?"

"This is my improved version," said Robert, and he read aloud a very creditable hymn, after which he repeated the old version, saying innocently, 'This one is crude and flat don't you think so, grandfather?"

"Crude and flat, sir! Young puppy, it is mine! I wrote that hymn!"

"Oh, I beg your pardon, grandfather! I didn't know that. It's a very nice hymn, indeed, but," as he went out of the door, "mine is better!"—Youth's Companion.

The Sweet Little Girl.

A gentleman invited a lecturer to his house to take tea Immediately on being seated at the table a little daughter of the gentleman said to the guest quite abruptly, "Where is your wife?" The lecturer, having been recently separated from the partner of his life was surprised and annoyed at the question and stammered forth the truth, "I don't know." "Don't know," repeated the terrible infant, "why don't you know?"

Finding that the child persisted in her interrogations, despite the mild reproof of the parents, he concluded to make a clean breast of the matter and have it over at once. So he said with calmness: "Well, we don't live together. We think as we can't agree we'd better not." He stifled a groan as the child began again and darted an exasperated look at her parents But the little torment would not be quieted until she exclaimed, "Can't agree! Then why don't you fight it out, as pa and ma do?"—London Tit-Bits.

Extra Territorial Jurisdiction.

In lands like China, Japan or Siam the United States minister or consul general, as well as the representatives of the other great powers, exercises what is called in the treaties "extra territorial jurisdiction" For instance, all violations of law by residents who claim the protection of the American flag, whether it be between themselves or with a native, must be adjusted by the consul At such ports as Reben, Hankow, Yokohama or Bangkok, the United States minister or consul sits almost daily as a court. His power is supreme, even to the point of ordering capital punishment, and the findings of the consular court are free of any revision or interference whatsoever of the native authorities.—Exchange.

He Could Wait.

"Rose," said the adorer, taking his hat and cane for the seventh time and making the third bluff at leaving since 11 o'clock, "Rose, bid me but hope. I could wait for you forever."

"That's all very well, Mr Staylate," said the beautiful girl coldly, "but you needn't begin tonight"—Chicago Record.

"Many of the citizens of Rainsville, Indiana, are never without a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house," says Jacob Brown, the leading merchant of the place. An Embarrassing Moment.

"Speaking of mistaken identity," said a theatrical agent, "I believe I made the worst break on the road once that ever was made It was at Rockford, Ills., where our company had just played the night before. Harry Watson, the Dutch comedian, and his wife, Alice Hutchins, were with us. She had just joined her husband, and I did not know whether she was going on or not I was very busy that day and incidentally laid out the berths on the train for the next town. Then I thought of Harry's wife, and hurrying over to the hotel saw what I supposed to be them at supper in the big dining room. I walked in, and approaching the table with my slips in hand I said

"'Is Mrs Watson going through with you on the sleeper tonight? I came very near forgetting her Will you want two berths or one?'

"Then, receiving no reply but a half suppressed groan from the lady, I looked up and discovered to my horror that I had made a mistake—the couple were total strangers. The look of suspicion on that woman's face was a corker, and it was leveled directly at her husband, while he was too astonished to utter a word. But I quickly relieved the tension by abruptly apologizing for my error and bolted for the doors, the most embarrassed of the three."—New York Herald.

Early Smoking.

Every one has read that Hawkins introduced tobacco, and that James inveighed against it Elizabeth liked to sit on a low stool and watch Sir Walter Raleigh puffing away Once she bet him that he could not tell the weight of the smoke in his pipe, but the philosopher won In Anne's reign almost every one smoked. In Charles II's reign "children were sent to school with their pipes in their satchels, and the schoolmaster called a halt in their studies while they smoked."

In 1702 Jorevin spent an evening with his brother at Garraway's coffee house, Leeds, and writes· "I was surprised to see his sickly child of 3 years old fill its pipe of tobacco and smoke it as audaciously as a man of threescore, after that a second and third pipe, without the least concern, as it is said to have done above a year ago"

There were about 170 coffee houses in London, besides five chocolate houses, in Anne's time Smoking was general in them, and intoxicants could be also obtained as well as coffee. Bishop Trelawney was much hurt because Bishop Barnett had accused him of getting drunk in one of them on the 30th of January—a day of grief to Tories and all good churchmen.—Westminster Review

Perthshire Queen of Scotland.

This is the central county of Scotland in more senses than one and has the natural and hereditary right to be regarded as queen of the land It was the first to draw attention hitherward and still remains the chief attraction When the southron talks of the highlands, he means Perthshire, when he starts for the highlands he arrives in Perthshire There are doubtless "hills beyond Grampians and lands beyond Tay," but on either side of the great watershed which marks the northern boundary of this county there is a tendency to become tamer and commoner

The charm of the scene is according to the seekers To some it may be these stream plowed ravines and glacier scooped lakes, to others the purple autumn hills with the whirring coveys of richly dark birds, but charm there is for all And if men would only leave the wild life alone, we do not know that there would be a more interesting and enchanting place to spend a summer holiday than this same Perthshire The other counties may well say, as was once said of a great statesman, 'We are all proud of you Scottish Review.

"A Penny In the Slot" Is Greek.

It is worth while recording that the "penny in the slot" automatic machine was known in the time of Hero of Alexander, who describes in his "Pneumatics" "a sacrificial vessel, which flows only when money is introduced" When the coin is dropped through the slot, it falls on one end of a balanced horizontal lever, which, being depressed, opens a valve suspended from a chain at the other end, and the water begins to flow. When the lever has been depressed to a certain angle, the coin falls off, and the valve, being weighted, returns to its seat and cuts off the supply. Hero's date is a little uncertain, but he is supposed to have lived B C 117 81.—Notes and Queries.

Longevity In Japan.

One of the noteworthy facts of the last census of Japan is the large number of persons who have attained the age of 100 years and upward. The total population of the empire is 40,500,000 and out of that number there was a total of 177 persons who had passed the century milestone—viz, eighty one who were 100 years of age, 46 of 101, 26 of 102, seven of 103, six of 104, one of 105, seven of 106 and three of 107. The combined ages of this wonderful "century community" of 177 persons yield a grand total of 16,937 years —Chicago Tribune.

ENGLISH "RED TAPE" CIRCUMVENTED

How an Appointment With an M. P. In the House of Commons Was Kept.

English "red tape" is a queer thing. More than once I ran foul of it within the sacred precincts of the British house of commons. I once had an engagement to meet an Irish M P. there some 15 minutes before the house opened I handed my card to the blue coated functionary who guarded the entrance corridor with the request that he hand it to the M. P in question.

"Sorry, sir," said he, "I cawn't do it. There hain't hany messengers 'ere yet, an my horders is not to take in hany cards myself"

Persuasion and entreaty were alike wasted upon him. Having had previous experience of the potent influence of a shilling or two judiciously bestowed, I attempted bribery. But he proved to be incorruptible

The situation was embarrassing and annoying. My engagement concerned a matter of some importance to myself at least I knew that the M. P was within a few hundred feet of me, and here was I as effectually prevented from getting at him by a barrier of "red tape" as if there stretched stone walls and iron bars between us.

At last I bethought me that there was a telegraph office in the rotunda just a few yards away. I rushed to it and in hot haste indicted this message:

I am here, but the blank fool of a doorkeeper won't take my card to you.

The clerk gravely took my message. I paid as much for its transmission as if it had been directed to somebody in the most remote corner of the British isles. A telegraph boy, being privileged to pass the doorkeeper, conveyed it to the representative of a somewhat turbulent constituency. He responded immediately, and I had the satisfaction of knowing that for once I had circumvented English red tape.—New York Herald.

What Minnie Wanted.

Speaking of children, the following little tale comes from one who is well versed in child lore and is the children's friend.

Mamma and papa were going from home for a time, and little Minnie was sent to Uncle John's for a visit. The small girl was so homesick her big cousin tried to entertain her with cards. This never failed to stop the ready tears.

When the visits were over and the family gathered at home. Minnie missed her games and one day broke out in a passion of grief, crying for her "cards."

The father and mother were utterly at a loss for a time. Good Methodists, they never had a card in the house and had no suspicion of the contamination to which the child had been exposed at Uncle John's.

At last, in despair, all the visiting and business cards in the house were collected for Minnie, but she threw them scornfully aside and electrified her parents by demanding the "death of spades" and "'ath of hearts."—Buffalo News.

George Eliot.

Some fresh anecdotes of George Eliot are related in Youmans' correspondence. Mr. Lewes had arranged to take a ramble in the country with Herbert Spencer and Youmans, but was prevented at the last moment and dispatched the following note. "My Dear Philosopher—Polly is ill, and as husbands are indivisible (and for that reason probably no matter) I am sorry to say I shall not have a leg or a cerebellum at your service Faithfully yours G. H Lewes" The quip on the divisibility of matter is a fair specimen of Lewes' jokes. At another time Spencer called at the Lewes house just as George Eliot was finishing "The Mill on the Floss," and Lewes, who was leaving the house for an errand, met him on the steps "Oh, Spencer," he exclaimed, "do go in and comfort Polly. She is crying her eyes out over the death of her children (Tom and Maggie Tulliver)."—John Fiske's Life of Edward Livingston Youmans.

Only Two of Them Left.

"What we want is novelty, my boy," said an old comedian as he and the heavies stopped to discuss the fly by night company they proposed taking out "Tanks and steam engines are played out. We must give them a novelty that will stir their blood Let's hire some real actors and play one of the old time blood and thunder pieces."

"Where will we get the actors, my boy?" answered the old tragedian as he fondled his cigar lovingly and buttoned up his coat. "Booth is dead; Barrett is gone. Of all there are only thou and I left."

Then the two doughty old fakirs were so overcome with their utter loneliness that they bowed their heads and wept until it was time to take another —Philadelphia Call.

WORLD'S FAIR ART PORTFOLIOS

Almost everyone has taken up some coupon scheme by which they have procured a set of World's Fair Art Portfolios, commemorative of the many interesting features of the greatest of the world's expositions.

The Fair is dead. Long live the Fair! Let us do better. Artists have captured all this fugitive splendor with trusty camera and practiced pencil, and many splendid series of views of its art and architecture, its landscapes and waterways, its exhibits and curiosities, are the result—and the very best result. It is the Fair over again for ourselves and our children and their children—to the end of time, if they but preserve it. Let us take the initial step and have the parts of the Art Portfolios bound, that none may be lost or injured.

CRASH

On the C., H. & D. Early this Morning.

Conductor Jack O'Brien of this City Badly Hurt in the Wreck.

A South Bound Passenger Train Runs Into a Freight South of Dayton—Several Injured.

The C. H. & D. had the most serious wreck that has occurred on that road for a long time, this morning, a south bound passenger train and a north bound freight train coming together on the main track a short distance north of Miamisburg, a small town about seven miles south of Dayton.

Conductor Jack O'Brien, of this city, was among the trainmen hurt, and received the most serious injuries of any although his train was not in the wreck. Jack had a very miraculous escape and came home this morning with his badly cut face and head swathed in muslin.

It was about 4:35 o'clock this morning when conductor O'Brien, who was on a south bound freight, and his train pulled into the siding at Miamisburg to meet a north bound extra freight and also allow south bound passenger train No. 51, which runs from Dayton to Cincinnati, to pass. Conductor O'Brien's train did not clear and, when the extra came up he flagged them into a standstill and boarded the engine. It was intended to have the extra pull up far enough to allow the south bound train to pull out onto the main track far enough to let the north bound train pull up and back in and see-saw until the passenger train could get past.

The extra

HAD BROKEN IN TWO

about thirteen cars back from the engine and while they were being coupled up the passenger train came down upon them. The track is straight for nearly a mile and how the passenger happened to plough into the freight is unaccounted for and not explained.

Engine No. 200, engineer Billy Corcoran was pulling the freight, and fireman Kamp and conductor O'Brien were in the engine with him at the time of the crash. The south bound passenger train was being handled by engine 116, engineer Kent and fireman Sherlock. Conductor Billy Morgan was in charge of the passenger train which was going at a lively clip when they hit the freight. The baggage car was tumbled into the ditch and the enginemen on both trains injured, but are not reported seriously hurt. Conductor Morgan was hurt, his leg being severely wrenched. It is not thought any of the passengers were seriously hurt in the wreck.

Conductor O'Brien seems to have been the most unfortunate one of the lot. He was in the freight engine cab but did not hear or see the passenger coming on account of the cab being filled with steam. He was standing in the gangway when they struck and was knocked senseless. His scalp was cut in a dozen or more places, some of the gashes being several inches in length, while his nose was cut on the bridge and it was feared broken, at first. O'Brien and the injured trainmen were cared for at Miamisburg, their injuries being looked after and wounds dressed, Conductor O'Brien coming to his home in this city on passenger train No. 2, due here at 8:55 o'clock but delayed an hour

ON ACCOUNT OF THE WRECK.

Both engines were badly smashed and firmly wedged together by the force of the collision, while a number of the freight cars were piled up in the wreckage.

The passenger train, run as No. 51, is an Erie train, which reaches Cincinnati on the C., H. & D. tracks by way of Dayton and is run by C., H. & D. crews.

The Fort Wayne boys who came back from Lima, this morning were very indignant over the manner in which the road race at that place yesterday was conducted. The race course was in a fearful condition and cut up by a railroad track. During the race a freight train came along and cut off some of the boys who were riding. Willfred Runyan, of Urbana, who won the race, had eleven minutes start and is said to be a genuine professional. This, however, could cut no figure in the race as professionals can not be barred out of an ordinary road race.—Ft. Wayne Sentinel.

* *

Runyan, the winner of the bicycle race, appeared this afternoon for the first since the race. Immediately after the race had been concluded on Decoration Day, the judges went into session and Runyan heard that a protest was to be made against him on the grounds of his being a professional. He had but a few minutes in which to catch a train for Urbana, which he did, and this afternoon returned with papers and affidavits to prove that he was nothing more than an amateur at the time of the race. His proof was not needed as no protest had been made.

BABY SCALDED

By Falling Into a Tub Filled With Boiling Water.

About 12 o'clock this morning, the thirteen-months-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Brown, of 826 East High street, was badly burned by falling into a tub of scalding water.

The family washing was being done and the child had been left alone while playing about the floor in the kitchen. The mother was out of the room when she heard the infant's screams and, upon turning, discovered the babe had fallen into the tub which had been left on the floor. She rushed to the babe's assistance, and lifting it from the tub, called for assistance and summoned Dr. Munaugh.

The left side of the babe's face and body were badly burned and blistered, but it is not considered seriously scalded.

A FORTUNE

He Loaned the Government Money which was Never Returned.

Mrs. W. O. Broiller, of 324 North Sugar street, is one of about forty heirs to an amount of about $4,000,000 which an effort is now being made to secure. Mr. Broiller returned yesterday from Chicago where a conference of the heirs was held and affairs placed in shape to be pressed to a settlement.

A claim against the government that had had its origin in the perilous days of the War for Independence—back in the time when the Revolutionists were suffering almost indescribable eardships at Valley Forge—is about to be pressed by heirs who live in this city, in Harrisburg and Sunberry, Pa., and in Indiana. The amount involved at the beginning was about $400,000. With the accumulation of interest for nearly one hundred and twenty years the figures are swollen to more than four million of dollars. Last week there was a meeting here of the Philadelphians interested at which steps were taken to further the effort to secure payment, and last night Lawyer John W. Martin, of 2173 Franklin street, who represents them and whose mother is one of the claimants, told of the case so far as it has progressed.

Those who at present have it in charge at Washington, where, of course, it will have to be pressed, were, he said, ex-Minister to Bolivia Anderson, ex-Congressman Doan of Ohio, and ex-Judge O'Neal, of the same State. The ancesters from whom the claim descends was Jacob De Haven, who came over to America from Hanover and became proprietor of the Broad Ax Tavern, near Valley Forge, in Montgomery county still standing as one of the oldest landmarks of similar character in Pennsylvania. During the time that Washington was in winter quarters on the famous battle ground, and while his army was enduring all the sufferings of hunger and cold, De Haven furnished them with supplies and at the same time advanced money to Robert Morris, who was the financier of the Revolution.

The entire amount of the debt was $400,000, and though De Haven made efforts to secure its return during his life time he failed. Subsequently, in the fifties of the present century, it was taken up by his heirs, and the effort for its recovery was in good shape when the war of the rebellion broke out. The claimants have proved their case, and were only prevented from getting their money by the chaotic condition of the government during that period. Nothing further was done in the matter until quite recently, when it was placed in the hands of the Washington attorneys named above, who have expressed the utmost confidence in their ability to secure payment.

The first step in view now is to have the case passed upon by the Court of Claims at Washington, where it is expected judgment will not be long delayed and then to have Congress provide the appropriation necessary to pay the amount awarded the heirs.

TWELVE POLICEMEN

Now to Protect the City Instead of Fourteen.

According to the decision of the city council at a recent meeting to have a police force of twelve instead of fourteen men, a dozen patrolmen have been assigned by Chief Haller to their beats for this month. Since the resignation of ex-chief Stockton, there has been but thirteen men on duty, and Jacob Marks, although having served the same as a regular patrolman since his appointment, was never appointed on the regular force, consequently he is the victim who loses his position.

Instead of four, the day force now consists of three patrolmen and their beats are north of Wayne, from Wayne to river and south of the river. The night force now consists of seven patrol men and the beats west of Main which were formerly covered by three, are now covered by two men.

Marks will now do duty only on special occasions when extra men are needed or when a regular man is laying off.

The new force was assigned to their beats for this month, as follows: Day force:—Roney, north of Wayne; Kennedy, Wayne to river, and Phalen south of river.

Night force:—Baker, north of Wayne, east of Main; Jackson, Wayne to High, east of Main; Croy, High to river, east of Main; Patton, north of North, west of Main; Wingate, North to river, west of Main; Lehman and Blair south of river.

Several special men will be appointed by the mayor.

AN OLD ROBBERY

Last night policeman Phalen arrested James Noonan at Geiger's saloon in the Klaus block and lodged him in the city prison. Noonan is charged with having committed a robbery which occurred about a year ago, when the residence of Mrs. Owens, on Grand avenue, was robbed of most of its furniture, during the absence of Mrs. Owens, who was out of the city visiting. The stolen furniture was found stored in two different barns on North West street, and reported to the police, who located the owner, but did not find the thief until Mrs. Owens appealed to Phalen, who was at that time lieutenant of police, and he took the case in his own hands. The only clue which was at first discovered was a letter which had been dropped in the house by the thief. The letter had been written by a woman named Gallagher to a lady friend in Sidney, and after identifying the writer, Phalen learned that the letter had been given Noonan to put in an envelope and mail. The officer then went before the grand jury, during the jurisdiction of prosecuting attorney Motter, and giving what evidence he then had, he succeeded in getting Noonan indicted for burglary. Immediately after the robbery was committed Noonan went to Tipton, Ind., and was gone for several months, and finally returned here. In the meantime Phalen completed his chain of evidence and last night made the arrest.

Threw Stones at Him.

Last evening an old German, who could not converse in any language except his own, appeared before Mayor Smiley and, with the assistance of an interpreter, filed a complaint against two north end boys named Shick and Lovitt, whom he claimed threw stones and mud at him and ridiculed him because of his inability to speak English. A warrant was issued and the boys arrested last night by policemen Lehman and Baker, and afterwards released on their own recognizance, to appear before the mayor to-morrow morning.
